

The Story of Integer Continent

Once upon a time on a continent far, far, away, there lived two kinds of people - optimistic people (positive folk) and pessimistic people (negative folk). They NEVER got along! So... they started fighting and separated to two areas of the land (positive on the right, and negative on the left). A war started.... Unfortunately these groups weren't too bright, so they fought like Europeans - pre-Revolutionary War style. They line up across from each other and shoot. The people with the most soldiers wins, basically.

